OBSERVATIONSBy Bob WalshAnd Now, The Conewango

When they belatedly turned over a few spadesful of dirt up river from Warren Saturday afternoon, attended by dignitaries from Washington and Harrisburg, we had tangible evidence that a major contribution to control of the Allegheny river waters in this area was rapidly approaching the status of a fait accompli. The many effects and benefits of the dam we have been discussing for twenty years, and of prime importance among them is the reduction of flood waters.

You can't practically turn off the stream twelve miles above a community and not reduce its flow to a large degree. Thus we are bound to have less water at critical moments.

But the natives along the banks of the Conewango creek also have their problems, and we should be doing what we can to encourage the adoption of plans already proposed, or the development of new ones. Perhaps we should not sympathize with those who build valuable cottages and even homes in areas that are obviously subject to floods, but here is a stream that can have great value to us if its banks are made safe for the many who would like to use the water for a variety of purposes, ranging from the aesthetic view to the commercial.

The Conewango creek has not caused our river floods as some have claimed, but any stream which adds waters to the Allegheny certainly is not helping to lower the flood level. We have seen the Allegheny river falling immediately after a flood crest had been reached while the creek was still rising. And we have seen the creek over the Beaty field banks while the river was flowing peacefully by.

The creek lacks natural character for water containment. It does not have the forests of the river valleys and it has much open land, many acres of which are used for farming. Its muddy color when the water is high reveals the loss of valuable top-soil which is being washed off the plowed and cultivated land.

Two Answers

There are two very obvious answers, and we are sure that others will materialize as soon as the subject becomes full blown. The creek already has a reservoir, Lake Chautauqua. The lake during critical periods reaches high levels that require the release of water to protect the property on its shores. This always happens when the creek already is swollen and the result is obvious.

Engineers have proposed an overflow into Lake Erie. They say there is a natural gully leading to the lake which can be used. We have some doubts about this because of the usual development that takes place when valleys are not used, and there could be adverse effects on highways, railroads, and other properties.

GIVE BLOOD !!!

"Onward, 'Christian' Soldiers"*The Editor Notes . . .*AMONG THE MISSING

We had planned to leave the ground-breaking ceremonies at the Allegheny dam site alone, but there are aspects of it that move us too far for silence. We understand that Congressman Gavin was absent because of illness, and if so this may have been a providential twist of fate. It is even possible that his conscience wouldn't let him participate.

However, the speakers filled the void by extolling the Congressman and his part in obtaining the funds for this project. This we could let go, because it is the normal process of public events, but to mouth this kind of blarney two and a half weeks before election moves us off our fence and squarely atop a high stump.

Congressman Gavin was not a leader in this effort to obtain the dam. He followed obediently where the big powers led, and failed to turn his hand until nature took a radical turn and the enlightened populace demanded action.

The cure had been sitting there for years, but a few influential residents were strongly opposed. Congressman Gavin, if he had been really informed, and had been truly concerned about lives and property, should have been informing the public and leading the fight for a practical solution.

But Congressman Gavin was going to the other extreme. In fact, standing in the Warren county court house he stated that such a dam should not be allowed to block a large inland river. And he had a few other words to say against it.

Then came the flood of 1956 and another meeting at the court house. Again the Congressman was speaking. This time to an angry gathering of people with wet holes and industrial plants. He suddenly was their champion in shining armor, fully equipped with aquatic accoutrements.

Yes, he has been working for the dam during these four years of pressure from many interested groups. And we thank him for that. But let's not forget in the midst of a political campaign that this man is not a leader. We need leaders in Washington today, men with vision and the courage to take unpopular stands.

Congressman Gavin does not fit that stature.

PRESSURE REVEALED

The Observer is adding many leading writers to its staff and to its services. One of these will be Jack Gould, television critic for the New York Times.

You probably didn't read about it locally but Mr. Gould recently hit the front pages with an exposure of pressure applied by the State Department to the networks. It was reported that all the networks were contacted in an effort to limit Khrushchev's comments to those made at the U. N. and to keep him off the air as much as possible.

We certainly advocated the same policy, but there is a difference between the press establishing a wise policy and being told what its policy is to be. You can argue that they were not told, but stations are licensed by the government and any portion of the broadcasting industry is extremely sensitive to government suggestions.

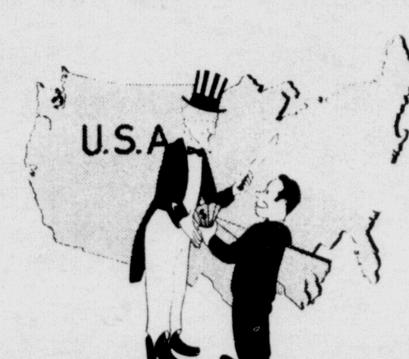

We are pleased that it was our columnist who was the only one alert to the developments and with the courage to reveal the truth. We welcome Jack Gould.

****FEDERAL SPENDING ASSURED

There is much talk these days about how much one party will spend if elected and how little the other will check out. The voting taxpayer might as well toss this one aside as so much political chatter. No matter which party moves into the White House next year federal funds will be needed to pull us out of the current slump and they also will be required to beef up our defense. A happy combination for those who enjoy booms, despite potential inflation.

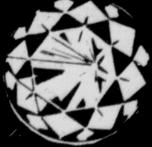

This isn't our idea. Economists of the nation agree and the Wall Street Journal reports that we now are in a recession and that it will be ended next year by federal spending. They also predict that our defense budget will go up two billion dollars a year and that it will increase from its $40 billion level to a $50 billion total by 1965.

Who will pay the bill? The people who benefit through the advantage of living in a free nation. You are one of them. You will pay, no matter who is elected. And we suggest it is worth every billion of it.

Matter of Fact . . .

THE PATTERN IN DULUTH

By Joseph Alsop

for a Catholic."

DULUTH, Minn. "Kennedy's my choice, even if he is a Democrat. I've always been a Republican -- I voted for Eisenhower, naturally, too. But the Democrats are for the little people, and we need help now."

"Kennedy is just as well qualified as Nixon, and we need a change. The Republicans are always for big business, the Democrats are for the working people. I'm voting for Kennedy."

"Kennedy's a bit young, but he's a fine man, and he's a Democrat. That's what counts with me."

The first speaker was Mrs. John Arneson, the big, jolly wife of a Great Lakes sailor. The second was W. C. Brubb, a quiet-spoken dental technician. The third was Chester Sieverson, a crane operator. All three are Lutherans. And all three are in every way outwardly similar to the rather numerous Lutheran working people in Minneapolis and St. Paul who told this reporter that "they couldn't vote

In Duluth, however, it is different. When asked if Sen. Kennedy's religious faith troubled her at all, smiling Mrs. Arneson suddenly looked grim, and all but snapped out her answer: "Not one bit!" The two men quoted reacted in the same manner, and so did a great many more Duluth people like them. There is nothing mysterious, either, in this quite marked difference of reaction between otherwise similar voters in Duluth and the Twin Cities.

Duluth has suffered far more from the current business slowdown than the Twin Cities have suffered, at least as yet. Production on the iron range is down. Steel output is down, Great Lakes shipping is down. Economic issues therefore predominate here, even though Duluth people, like people everywhere else in the country, say the first and biggest national problem is keeping the peace.

In particular, economic issues have very largely overshadowed the so-called religious issue, at least in the lower income brackets of the electorate. The result has been a surge towards the Democrats by the people in these brackets. And this may well be strong enough to produce a fairly dramatic vote in Duluth on Election Day.

This is the conclusion that emerged, at any rate, from a long day of pavement pounding and doorbell ringing by Bob O'Keefe and Dick Jacobs, of "The Duluth Herald" and "News-Tribune," and this reporter. We talked to ninety-six Duluth people in all, mainly in the 18th and 19th precincts, with a foray into the suburban 2nd precinct to balance our findings. All three precincts, it should be noted, gave majorities to President Eisenhower in 1956.

In the prosperous 2nd Precinct, the houses remind you of an ideal homes exhibition. Even there, we found that Vice President Nixon was not doing as well this year as the President had done four years ago.

Of the twenty-six people we interviewed there, 18 had voted for Eisenhower, only 5 had voted for Adlai Stevenson, and 3 had not voted in the last election. Today, 14 were backing Nixon, 7 plumped for Kennedy, and the remainder were still undecided. In this precinct, moreover, expressions of religious feeling were relatively rare, and Kennedy was really swamping Nixon. Economics had transformed a slight Eisenhower lead into a commanding Kennedy majority.

To be specific, we talked to no less than seventy voters in these two neighboring precincts. Of these people, 30 had chosen Eisenhower, 29 had chosen Stevenson, and 11 had not voted in 1956. Today, the same people gave 37 votes to Kennedy and only 21 to Nixon, with 12 undecided. In sum, the shift towards the Democrats is very strong indeed.

In Duluth as a whole, and in Minnesota's iron range, the shift should be vastly stronger than in the 18th and 19th precincts. This neighborhood is more prosperous and more Republican than the Duluth-iron range average. Partisan solidification, when it occurs at all, always goes furthest in places where the party already predominates. Thus the Republican minorities in Duluth's naturally Democratic districts, which were substantial in 1956, may all but vanish in 1960.

Up here, in sum, you have a situation like the situation at the close of the West Virginia primary. The people have more serious -- and more painful -- things to think about than Sen. Kennedy's church. And their thinking about these things has led a great many of them to choose Sen. Kennedy despite his church.

How Will Democrats Vote?

By Marquis Childs

LOS ANGELES. -- The greatest question mark in this whole election campaign is whether registered Democrats will vote Democratic on November 8. If they do then Sen. John F. Kennedy will be elected by a large majority of electoral votes, since in almost every state the Democrats have enrolled majorities that exceed the Republicans.

This is dramatized here in California where with an intensive new registration drive the Democrats have maintained their three-to-two lead over the Republicans. The totals show 4,295,330 Democrats and 2,926,408 Republicans.

Democratic leaders are saying both in private and in public that they will carry this state. They have become increasingly optimistic during the past week. Republicans are more cautious, insisting that while Vice-President Richard M. Nixon may have a slight lead today the race is extremely close and it could go either way. The California odds, in the view of this observer, do seem to favor the Kennedy-Johnson ticket because of the very nature of the campaign not only here but throughout the country.

Republican hopes are based on the belief that Democratic registration means comparatively little and that, as in 1952 and '56, enough registered Democrats will vote for the Republican candidate. Democrats are convinced that party choice in registration is significant, particularly with new voters who favor the programs the Democrats stand for and which Senator Kennedy advocates in his speeches.

If the Democrats are right and this is a test of party, then the election becomes, quite apart from its meaning for the world and America's position as a world leader, the supreme -- perhaps the ultimate -- challenge to the Republicans. For a Republican, running as a party man, has not won a Presidential election since 1928 when Herbert Hoover defeated Al Smith. And during that 32-year interval the Republicans have controlled the Congress for only six years and then by slight majorities.

Prior to 1952 President Eisenhower had no party affiliation. He was wooed by both the Democrats and the Republicans, finally accepting the embrace of the latter. But as a national hero he has always tended to take a position above partisan politics. It is in this role, as a warm-hearted paterfamilias, that at the height of the present campaign he is making his current leisurely "nonpolitical" tour of the country. Except occasionally to give them his blessing, the President has done little or nothing to reshape and rebuild the party he belatedly chose. In short, he has been a nonpolitical President.

In the current contest certainly Nixon is no Eisenhower nor is Kennedy a Roosevelt. That is to say, the choice is not between a powerful and popular personality and a party man marching under the party banner. It is neither 1936, when Franklin Roosevelt was running against Alfred M. Landon, nor 1956 when President Eisenhower was running for re-election against the challenge of Adlai Stevenson.

Nationwide the Gallup poll gives the Democrats an edge of 19,000,000 voters over the Republicans, based on a calculation of total registration. In states such as Pennsylvania and Delaware, where the Republicans have always led, the Democrats now have majorities. In Michigan, where registration has increased 19 percent from the total of last April, most of the increase has come in Detroit and other industrial areas that are heavily Democratic.

The Democrats have 34 of the 50 state governors and most of the mayors of the big cities. These are hard political facts that can, and in most instances do, add up to patronage and organization. In a contest along party lines this could be the deciding factor.

But there are important qualifers. First and foremost is the religious question. In certain cities, notably here in Los Angeles, it could work against Kennedy. A flood of anti-Catholic literature is being released across the country, timed for the last two weeks of the campaign. And a generous share is allocated to southern California where, with an influx of Southerners and Midwesterners, this appeal to prejudice may find a response which it would not have in the East.

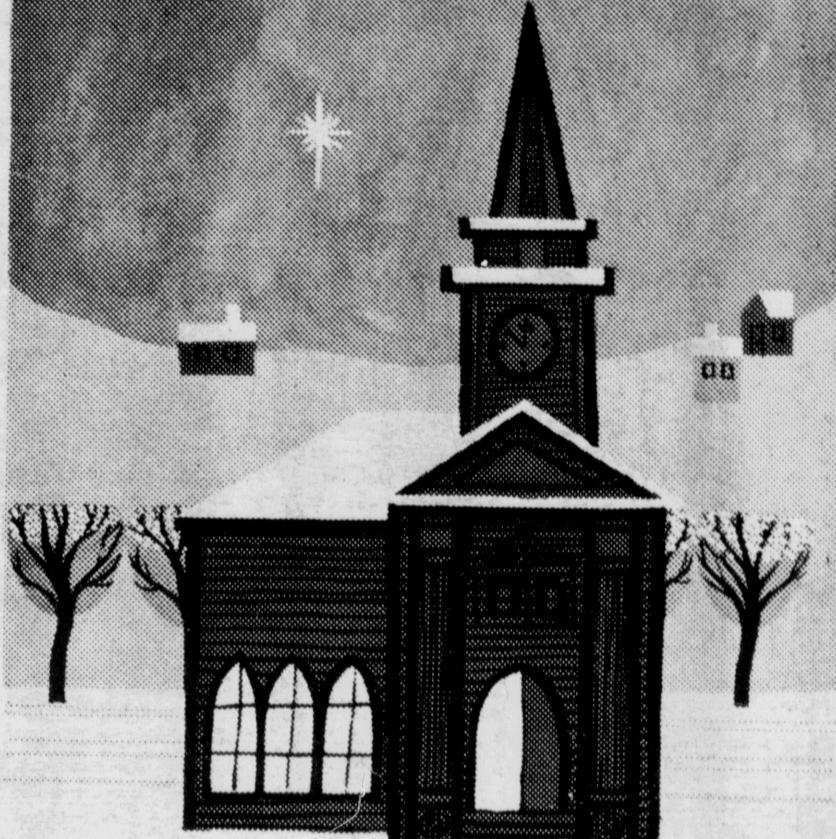

In some areas the Nixon organization, as apart from the regular Republican organization, is working harder and more effectively where the voters live than the Democratic organizations. Democrats will say privately that this is true in southern California where the Nixon workers are doing a thorough and tireless job at the precinct level.

Still another qualifier concerns the continuing unhappiness and reluctance of the devoted Stevensonites. They will virtually all vote for Kennedy in the end. But they are not doing the doorbell ringing and the telephoning of past years.

Kennedy is coming back here for the first two days in November, Nixon is now scheduled for Nov. 3, 4 and 5. The Republicans will pour big money into a massive TV-radio coverage in the last 10 days. What happened in November of 1916 when a few thousand votes trickling in from California's northern counties decided the Presidency haunts the dreams of both the candidates.

Gives the Democrats an edge of 19,000,000 voters over the Republicans, based on a calculation of total registration. In states such as Pennsylvania and Delaware, where the Republicans have always led, the Democrats now have majorities. In Michigan, where registration has increased 19 percent from the total of last April, most of the increase has come in Detroit and other industrial areas that are heavily Democratic.

The Democrats have 34 of the 50 state governors and most of the mayors of the big cities. These are hard political facts that can, and in most instances do, add up to patronage and organization. In a contest along party lines this could be the deciding factor.

But there are important quali-

We're Moving... CONSTANTLY!

And our next move is to color. This is the trend in all progressive publishing and advertising circles today. In fact the biggest operators are requesting color to effectively present their products.

And so the Observer moves to color. It will require time and experience to assure top grade work on our new equipment, but we expect to have it available for all modern merchandisers who are alert to the value of the colored page.

We invite your inquiries.

DON'T RUSH INTO TUBE ROUTES

Warren county residents who are being advised that an evening daily will soon deliver papers to them on the day of publication might save themselves money if they wait a few days.

The Observer plans to become a daily very soon, and it will be published in the morning. Naturally you will receive it the same day.

Present subscribers to the Observer will benefit because their subscription will be honored on the same time basis as their weekly. And if they choose to pay the price of receiving their daily Observer by tube route, they will have it much earlier than an evening paper, earlier than their mail delivery, and probably for less money than the evening daily.

So, hold the phone, keep your checkbook closed, and wait a bit. We'll be along shortly.

BUYERS' CORNER

AN AD REFUSED

It is difficult for the newspapers to play policeman in respect to advertising that is offered them for publication. Though most publishers do not wish to carry appeals that will prove costly to their readers, how are they to know what drugs, foods, and other products are not all that is claimed for them?

If a merchant has a legitimate product to sell he certainly has a right to announce the fact. For this reason we have a Buyers column. We hope to counteract many claims thus made, and we wish to warn the reader against dangers. From there it is up to him.

However, occasionally we can spot a suspicious sales pitch, such as the one which flooded the state's papers last week. A page ad advertising a weight-reducer was received by most of the papers.

The Observer's advertising department immediately called the medical profession in an effort to learn if it was a legitimate product. We learned nothing. We then stalled for two days hoping we could uncover some facts.

Waiting paid off. The Pennsylvania Newspaper Association notified all members that the only address that could be located for this advertiser was a telephone call service. And the chamber of commerce in the home town of the advertiser never had heard of the company or the product.

For that reason on the pages of the Observer you have not read about a powder which you pour in water for the purpose of easily losing weight.

GUM NOT STUCK AT NICKLE

Inflation finally is threatening the five-cent package of gum. A good chew soon may cost you a dime if you buy it in a vending machine, though you may receive eight sticks for your money. You still may be able to obtain your cud for a nickle, but it probably will be confined to four sticks. And a penny will buy a sliver.

MORE HOLE

You may obtain more doughnut hole for your money in 1961. Because the bakers do not want to raise the price they are planning to enlarge the hole, by decree of the Donut Institute. It will be a quarter of an inch larger "as a sign of good times to come".

***

TOOTH DECAY BATTLE

You can't say there is nothing new on the dental front, but the fact is no one knows what causes decay and up to now you can't be vaccinated against it. But it will come.

Dental care is being made more painless with the help of fast drills, and there are developments in the offing which may help control cavities. There is talk of a gum, and there may be a glue that will fix a tooth in your mouth.

Annually we seem to go through this review with little to report except potentials. We always come back to the one true advancement . . . fluoridation. It reaches 38 million people today and a 65 per cent reduction in cavities is claimed. Washington, Philadelphia, Minneapolis, and Indianapolis are cities included.

The big controversy right now is over Crest toothpaste. The American Dental Association endorsed it last August as a preventive. But dental researchers challenge the endorsement and question whether or not enough research has been performed to prove the claims.

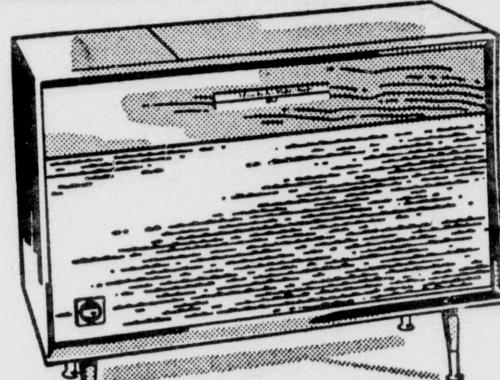

Other toothpastes are moving into the act and the Navy is coming up with a report on a two-year study of brushing with Crest, Gardol, and two other cleaners.

It is the Navy which has the glue that fits a tooth to the jawbone. So far they have used it only on animals.

Meanwhile brush your teeth, rinse the mouth clean after meals, and visit your dentist once a year. No one has the real answer.

Anyone For Voting?

By Inez Robb

It is possible, probably, to please all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time, but never, never, NEVER all of the people all of the time in an election year.

Granted the above premise, still and all, the Presidential election year of 1960 will surely go down in history as the one distinguished by the highest percentage of malcontents among the voters.

A careful study of the polls, from Gallup to breakfast, indicates that the American voter believes that on Nov. 8, he faces Hobson's choice and wants none of it.

The most common and widespread reaction to the pollsters' query re the voter's Presidential choice is, and I quote:

"I don't like either guy and I'm gonna sit this one out. I'm not gonna waste my time votin."

There is every indication that the Presidential election of 1960 may go down in history as The Great Wallflower Election, with everyone sitting it out, no one wanting to waltz either candidate and the band playing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" or "They're All Out of Step But Me".

Polls and pollsters have multiplied like rabbits since 1932 when the tottering old "Literary Digest," may it rest in peace, followed down the drain its stubborn and unfaltering poll that predicted right up to election day that Herbert Hoover would murder F. D. Roosevelt. (I have often suspected that the late "Literary Digest" tossed into the wastebasket all ballots like mine that suggested F.D.R. had an outside chance.)

In 1960 I am particularly impressed by the newspapers that have sent out their own individual pollsters to cross the country by foot, bus and pogo stick. These lads may not cross-question many voters but, by golly, no one can deny they are turning up some characters who are dillies.

But the polls, whether professional or parochial, all indicate that what the Democrats and the Republicans are running is an Unpopularity Contest. There are days when I get the impression that only two small groups are going to turn up at the polls on Nov. 8: the Kennedys and Mrs. Nixon and Checkers.

During the past four Presidential elections, it was loudly acclaimed that citizens of the United States go to the polls not to vote FOR but to vote AGAINST a party and a candidate. But the election of '60 is unique in that the electorate is hedging all bets by being against not one but both candidates, according to the polls. Two for the price of one, as 'twere.

The polls have turned up a lot of dreamers, too, who rearrange the tickets nearer to their hearts' desire. That's America, that's unreconstructed idealism for you! There are the Democrats who say they'd go to the polls if only L.B.J. headed the ticket and Jack were in the second slot. And there are wistful Republicans who could vote on Nov. 8 if only Hank were No. 1 and Dick continued as Vice-President.

Then there are the rugged individualists who are going to sit on their hands on Election Day because they can't have a Lodge-Johnson ticket, or the equally hearty dissidents who are going fishing because the ticket doesn't read Johnson-Lodge.

The pollsters have turned up still another furious category of shut-ins come Nov. 8. They're jes' gonna set and rock on Election Day because neither party had the sense to give the voters a ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater and seconded by Sen. Harry Byrd.

Another equally vociferous group believes it has been cheated of political salvation by the lack of a ticket headed by Senator Byrd with Senator Goldwater as his running mate.

With so many citizens madder'n a hatter, planning to go

Real! Raw! Racy!

Have you taken a walk down Broadway recently? I'm an old marquee-reader from way back and never in my memory have the marques been quite so gamey.

"Love by Appointment" whispers the marquee over the Rialto, where they got a dandy double feature held over for the ninth smash week. "Unmarried Mothers" is the other one. "Call me anything but call me often" runs the caption under a half-dressed girl. "First New York Showing" (and almost certainly the last) "Most daring scenes ever shown. A story of unbridled passion and wanton love. Behind the scenes of a call girl racket. The girls who can't stop and the ones who won't." The plug for "Unmarried Mothers" is rather mild: "A searing indictment of today's moral standards."

Presently comes the Paramount, which is featuring a confection called "Desire in the Dust." It's kind of hard to say what that one's all about. "They whispered about the Colonial and his daughter. No one knew about the mother and the son. A challenging insight into the human hungers and the fires of the flesh." What are they hinting at anyway - incest? "Just a quiet Southern town - until its hidden shames exploded into the light of day. Kin by kin or sin by sin, their hidden desires rocked a town!" Just the thing for the kiddies.

So - on we go across the street to the Globe where you'll find "The Naked and Wicked." (No woman was safe with this brute. She was too much in love to realize she was doing wrong.) In the same theater: "Las Vegas Strip" ("Never, no never before such scenes! A volcano of smouldering passions. Hours of ecstasy, months of regret. So what goes on - and comes off - at the strip joints and dice parlors.") And plodding up the avenue you come to "Expresso Bongo" ("Real! Raw! Racy!")

Up the block is "Hell to Eternity" (On the beachhead or in a beach house Bill always made a perfect score. They said Sheila was cold to Marines - but Guy knew her boiling point. The big one that goes all the way").

Man and boy, I've been walking under Broadway marques for a long time now and I can't say that sort of teaser is a new trend. Hollywood has been boasting a long time about how it was going to lay my emotions bare with its searing flames, about the picture I dared them to make. (I did not ever dare them to make a picture. I've dared Hollywood not to make some pictures.)

But it does seem to me that sex has never been so naked and unashamed (Gee, Mannie, that's a great title for our next picture) or so blatantly the only reason they make so many pictures. I have several objections to this besides the obvious one that it's awfully hard to find a picture to take the kiddies to. For one thing, they're going to take all the novelty out of sex. For another - I don't know how to put this exactly in a family newspaper - but sex, when I was a kid, wasn't considered a spectator sport. It was meant to be played, not looked at.

The storm clouds are gathering, fellows. "New Themes Beg Censorial Frown," says "Variety" in last week's issue. "All indications are that the motion picture industry will face one of its most crucial legislative session in years," "Variety" reports.

An adjoining story in the same paper opens with: "Whether it's organized or unorganized, the fact remains that there is a distinct campaign against skid row morality in recent pictures and perhaps some of those upcoming." Classification laws are pending in several states. These would require films to be labelled as in England for adults only or for the whole family. In addition, the Catholic Church is beginning to complain again - and small wonder.

To be fair to the picture business, the sexy marquee is not the only kind. The movie flacks can still write poesy, pur poesy about their flicks that bring tears to the eyes of real marquee connoisseurs. "A story of people as human as any you know today, the rich, the poor, the cruel, the kind. The lovers and the loved, the haters and the hated." I tell you that's writing. (From the lobby exhibit for "Ben Hur.") Or ("Sunrise at Campobello"): "A story of love, a story of happiness. It is marriage and children. It is laughter through tears. It is devotion. It is courage."

But will it sell tickets?
(c) 1960, New York Herald Tribune, Inc.

HOW DID YOU VOTE?

No matter how you voted, these facts on gasoline taxes are important to you:

- In Pennsylvania, car owners pay 90¢ tax on every 10 gallons of gasoline they buy!
- Gasoline taxes across the nation amount to a 50% sales tax—and that's five times as high as the tax rate on luxuries like diamonds and mink coats!
- Since World War II, there have been three increases in the Federal gasoline tax alone. This brought the Federal tax to 4 cents a gallon, in addition to the State tax of 5 cents a gallon!
- In the last ten years gasoline taxes have skyrocketed 51%—yet the price of gasoline itself has risen only 5.5% during the same period!
- Each year the average motor vehicle owner in this state pays $67 for gasoline taxes alone. That's just a few dollars less than the average week's pay for most people!

HIGHWAYS AND GASOLINE TAXES

Your gasoline retailer, naturally, favors construction of the roads that the motoring public needs. He believes in fair and reasonable taxation for this purpose but feels that taxes on gasoline have now reached unreasonably high levels. He also believes that all special taxes on the motorist should be used only for highway purposes. Yet last year, out of every automobile tax dollar collected by the Federal Government from highway users, more than 40 cents went for non-highway purposes. If these automotive tax revenues were dedicated for highway purposes, there would be no need for the latest increase in the federal gasoline tax.

Timber Resource Plays Important Role in State's Economy

HARRISBURG -- Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice K. Goddard today called attention to the billion-dollar wood products industry in Pennsylvania as part of Pennsylvania Forest Products Week.

"Few people realize the enormously important role which our timber resource still plays in Pennsylvania's economy," he said. "Yet every hour we are using something that started in the 15,000,000 acres of forest that cover our state - more than half our land area.

"Walk across your hardwood floor -- quite possibly it was manufactured at flooring plants in Williamsport, Everett or Scottdale, among others, from oak or maple trees grown in Pennsylvania. Hang up your coat on a hanger made in Canton.

"Sit down and read a book or a magazine. The book paper quite possibly was produced in Spring Grove or Roaring Spring. If it's a magazine, Pennsylvania trees fed into pulp mills at Johnsonburg and Lock Haven may have helped provide your pleasure.

"Sit down at a desk and write a letter. Trees from Pennsylvania's forests keep one of the nation's leading stationery manufacturers at Erie supplied with raw material. Other pulp mills are at Tyrone and Williamsburg. The desk and chair could have been manufactured at one of dozens of Pennsylvania furniture plants using native wood, including plants at Lewisburg, Union City, Bethlehem, Youngsville, Red Lion, New Bethlehem and Aldenville.

"The asphalt roofing shingles which protect you and your home from storm damage possibly have a base of wood fibre produced at plants at Erie or Sunbury. When riding in your car, it is probable you will be using rayon tire cords processed on textile mill bobbins produced in Wellsville from Pennsylvania hard maple trees. Many of the clothes you wear, too, depended upon the same bobbins for some manufacturing processes.

"Lumber for furniture and a wide variety of other uses is the principal product of more than 1,500 sawmills scattered throughout Pennsylvania. Some of the larger ones are located at Galeton, Endeavor, Titusville, Hopwood and Sheffield. Many of the sawmills also produce railroad crossties and mine timbers. Wooden pallets for the shipping and handling of thousands of items are also a major product of Pennsylvania sawmills.

"When it is time for recreation, you'll probably use a product of Penn's Woods.

"Baseball? The bat you used probably started out in life as an ash tree on a Pennsylvania hillside, and was turned into the rough shape of a ball bat at plants in Ralston, Troy, Akeley, Tidioute, Strattonville or Mechanicburg. Going boating? You may use oars from a factory in Albion which also turns out hockey sticks among other products. Sledding? A plant in Duncannon makes sleds of Pennsylvania woods. Bowling? Plants in Corry and Galeton start out the process of turning hard maple logs into bowling pins and shoe lasts.

"And if you are going to have a picnic, you will possibly use charcoal made in Morris, Marvindale, Sergeant, Port Allegheny, Custer City or Brookville.

"Perhaps gardening is your favorite pastime. The handles of the tools you use, like the baseball bats, quite possibly began life in Pennsylvania ash trees. Plants roughing out tool handles are located at Galeton, Monroeton, Kane, White Mills, Union City and Coopersburg.

"A comparatively new Pennsylvania forest industry is the manufacturing of particle board from various types of wood, including residues. Such plants are at Tyrone, Scottdale and Eldred.

"Plants helping to turn white oak trees into barrels are at Waynesburg, Graysville, Bradock, Kittanning and Evans City, while plants at York and Glen Rock produce furniture veneers.

"Among the unusual are the plant in West Chester which still makes wooden wheel spokes, the York plant which makes wooden airplane propellers, the plant in Barto which makes birch oil for flavoring and the plant in Bedford which makes locust insulating pins for utility lines, the largest such plant in the world.

All of these plants make a major contribution to the economy of the state. It is estimated that 75,000 Pennsylvania forest industries workers earn an annual payroll of $270 million dollars. The products they produce are worth in excess of $1 billion.

If you want to be a "man of the world", then you should see all the latest styles, fabrics and ideas from abroad! They're from Italy, Scotland, England, The Orient and South America, so we can't say "they're out of this world"; but they sure are out of the world you've traveled in before.

Mt. Pleasant Man Dies From Head Injuries

The county's fourteenth traffic fatality of 1960 was recorded Monday afternoon when Kenneth Hunter, 28, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., died of injuries suffered in a traffic mishap which occurred Tuesday, Oct. 18, on Route 957 near Sugar Grove. Hunter was taken to Warren General Hospital after suffering head injuries in the mishap. He had remained unconscious in WGH for a length of time after his admission.

Hunter, accompanied by Gary Stewart, 15, of R.D. 3, Sugar Grove, were occupants of the ill-fated vehicle, which left the highway and struck a tree in the incident. Investigating officers of the Warren State Police barracks determined the cause of the mishap as excessive speed. ***

AT PENN AND LAUREL

An accident occurred Tuesday at 12:54 p.m. at the intersection of Laurel st. and Pennsylvania ave., W., involving vehicles driven by Samuel Merle Brumbaugh, 33, of Meadville, and Paul Douglas Smith, 25, of 408 Laurel st., Warren. Damage to each car in the mishap was estimated at $250.

Brumbaugh proceeding west on the avenue, hit the side of the Smith auto which was making a turn from Laurel st. to go east on the avenue. Smith thought he had time to make the turn, but his car failed to respond when he proceeded into the avenue.

DOE TAGS GOING FAST

The county's supply of antlerless deer licenses has dwindled to a little more than 3,000. County Treasurer William E. Rice said yesterday. The county's quota is 12,700 tags.

Mr. Rice also reports that since Aug. 16 his office has sold 750 archery licenses, 3,000 hunting licenses and approximately 400 non-resident hunting licenses.

SALARY HIKE OK'D FOR COUNTY PLANNER

A $300 salary increase for county planner William King has been approved by the Warren County Salary Board.

The board composed of the three county commissioners and the county treasurer voted 3-1 in favor of the increase recommended by the Warren Planning Board. Commissioner Blain Mead cast the lone "no" vote.

The action fulfilled an agreement with the planning commission that called for an increase for King after he had completed a year of satisfactory work.

The board also voted a $500 appropriation to the Youngsville Fair Association.

Ground-Breaking Ceremony for Kinzua Dam Held Saturday

MANY DIGNITARIES PRESENT FOR DAM GROUND-BREAKING CEREMONY

A ground-breaking ceremony performed Saturday afternoon at Big Bend on the property occupied for several generations by the Brownell family, formally marks the beginning of construction of the $114 million Kinzua Dam and Allegheny River Reservoir.

Completion date of this vast project is scheduled for 1965 by the Corps of Army Engineers.

The Honorable Wilber M. Brucker, Secretary of the Army of the United States, was the principal speaker at the ceremony. He discussed the national security of this country, while emphasizing the importance of preserving a tremendous sum of economic strength through such projects as the dam.

Other prominent figures who participated in the ground-breaking program were The Hon. David L. Lawrence, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; U. S. Senator Hugh D. Scott, U. S. Senator Joseph Clark; The Hon. Maurice K. Goddard, Secretary of Forests and Waters;

The Hon. Leroy E. Chapman of Warren, State senator; William F. Chase, president of the Greater Pittsburgh Area Chamber of Commerce.

Merle Kremer, president of the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce which planned the ceremony, presided at the ground-breaking program. A capable committee headed by Robert Daye was in charge.

The day's festivities commenced with a luncheon and brief program Saturday morning in Beatty cafeteria. Following this the guests and the public were transported to the Pennsylvania Railroad station to meet the excursion train which carried approximately 20 passenger cars of people to the ground-breaking site. The trip by train marked the last passenger run to be made by the Pennsy on that route.

PURPOSE

The primary purpose of the dam and reservoir is to protect the Allegheny and Ohio Valleys from flood damage which is caused by the 2,180 square mile watershed above Warren and the

The reservoir will lie in parts of Pennsylvania and New York State at reservoir full condition, extending from the dam site at Kinzua to Salamanca, N. Y., a distance of about 35 miles.

Basically, the purpose of the dam is for controlling flood waters, but it will be of great value industrial-wise and recreation-wise.

LET'S TALK SPORTS

CITY LEAGUE BASKETBALL interest is zooming as the cold snow moves into the area. . . . more and more fellows are making appearances on the YMCA floor each evening. . . . teams are beginning to form. . . . and physical director Bob Hammerbeck is quite anxious to have an organizational meeting in the near future.

DEFENDING CHAMPIONS, Blueberry Hill Inn, have made public their intentions of flooring another quintet this season as have last year's runner-ups, the Busy Bee combo. . . . other possibilities (which we may have mentioned before) are the Beaty teachers, Jack-Pot Golf, a Youngsville group, Struthers Hose, the Sheffield Saints, and an aggregation from Tidioute.

TOURING THE TOWN on Tuesday, we noticed many youngsters, who had the day off from school, busy on the sandlots with foot-balls. . . . always a good sign.

THE AMBASSADORS, who made a grand appearance here in Warren Thursday evening, will meet a high-flying team in the Cincy Royals on Oct. 27. . . . the Royals, led by the fabulous Oscar Robertson, whose brother plays on the Harlem team, now stand at 4-0 in the young NBA season.

THE RIDGWAY ELKERS nearly threw a "monkey wrench" into the Dragons' victory efforts Saturday night. . . . they surprised the Blue and White with a good running backfield and formidable line play.

THE DRAGONS are now preparing for the big Kane game this coming Saturday up on the Hilltop. . . . they spent Monday viewing films from last year's Kane game with the Johnsonburg squad.

THE KANE WOLVES' coaching staff was out in full force Saturday at Ridgway. . . . and they were reported to be well equipped with paper and pencils. Head coach Bob King will have to rebuild his team's spirit after the devastating 26-12 blow handed them by the Corry Beavers.

AS WE ALL KNOW, weather plays a very big role in any football game. . . . it can make champions of the last place clubs and chumps of the front-runners. . . . it could be influential in the Warren-Kane skirmish.

SHEFFIELD is preparing for its most important game of the year this Saturday as the Port Allegany team moves into town. . . . Port Allegany has yet to be defeated in AML play, but they will face a Sheffield team which has yielded only eighty points in seven games so far this year. Going into the season's finale, the Wolverines have averaged 34 points per game in nine settings.

The little community is expecting a huge crowd of onlookers for the crucial gridiron battle.

Scout Finance Drive Is Ready To Roll

The annual county-wide finance campaign conducted by the Boy Scout Council will get underway this week, it has been announced by David Smith, general chairman.

The Chief Cornplanter Council as a member of the Community Chest does not conduct an independent campaign in areas where it is a "Red Feather" agency.

However, Mr. Smith said, since Warren and Corry chests provide the Boy Scouts with only one-half of their needed funds, other communities outside the chest areas conduct their own financial drives each year.

Dragons Blank Elkers, 19 - 0, For Third Win

The Warren High Dragons whitewashed the Ridgway Elkers Saturday evening, 19-0, for their first independent victory of the season and a triumph which gained for them a 3-3-1 slate with three games remaining for the year. The victory was not an easy one for the Blue and White as the Elkers had a determined ball club, and several times did they manage to drive deep into Warren territory. But for the second week in a row, the charges of Ralph Veights displayed fine tackling to thwart the enemy efforts.

The locals scored first, late in the second stanza, when a pass from Dave Green to Pat Hartnett brought the pigskin inside the Ridgway five. Green then circled left end and pranced into the end zone for the six-pointer. Ron Seder's place kick for the PAT was no good.

Ridgway, long time a nemesis of the local gridiron forces, threatened to score even before time ran out in the first half, but they were stopped short of the goal near the Warren ten.

The Dragons posed a serious scoring threat in the third quarter as they brought the ball into the Elkers' eight on short passes, line plays, and a brace of fifteen-yard penalties. The drive was culminated when Green once more smashed into the end zone on an eight-yard slant. Again Seder's kick for the point after went wide of the uprights.

The battling Elkers' eleven, led by Giffi and Grandinetti, took a Ridgway surge to the Warren 12, but a fifteen-yard penalty, following a holding infraction, set them back from the goal. Warren took over possession of the ball on the Ridgway 23, and from that point marched the entire length of the field for its third score.

The sustained drive was climaxed when Wooster lofted an aerial to end Seder in the right corner for the touchdown. Seder, surrounded by enemy backs, made a beautiful grab of the pass to complete the scoring play. He then booted the pigskin through the goal to give Warren its last point of the game.

A FAN'S OBSERVATIONS: The game was well played on both teams' part . . . the tackling for the Blue and White was described by a witness as "crisp" (as it was in the Academy-Dragon battle).

Green and Hartnett were once more the workhorses of the Dragons' attack . . . Dave Reynolds suffered an injury early in the game, and was replaced at the fullback slot by Rog Colvin . . . Colvin has not appeared in the lineup lately, and he had trouble hanging onto the ball.

Credit must be given to the WHS Band under the direction of Harry Summers . . . performing on the strange turf, the musicians put on a splendid exhibition of precision marching which drew the plaudits of both the Warren and Ridgway fans.

The audience broke into "stitches" during the game when the Blue and White's benchriders, after standing up en masse, raced back to their seats, only to topple the bench en route . . . some of them landed on the ground, drawing laughs from the crowd.

VIEWS OF SPORT

By Red Smith

Sweetness and Light

In the fourth quarter a Notre Dame back plunging toward the Northwestern line was brought up short when his head rammed into the striped shirt front of an official who had contrived by some inept malfeasance to get himself in front of the play. Sundry Northwesterns then sprang upon the sprawled runner, bore him backward four or five yards, and buried him.

There was, as far as the television coverage revealed, no complaint about this intervention by an ineligible tackler. Nor did the Notre Dames protest when the ball was spotted several yards short of the point -- clearly marked by the seat of the official's britches -- where its forward progress had stopped.

If Joe Kuharich or his staff set up a holler from the Notre Dame bench, the TV camera didn't pick it up. It occurred to the viewer that this had been an uncommonly pacific football season, singularly devoid of major rhubarbs, charges of incompetent officiating or accusations of dirty play.

Here's November coming on, and still no paragon of sportsmanship has hit the headlines screaming, "We was robbed!", no educator has risen to characterize the opposing team as a pack of hired thugs. No doubt the meek shall one day inherit the earth, but there is such a thing as overdoing gentlemanly restraint.

Once Upon an Island

Three possible explanations suggest themselves for this alarming spread of sweetness and light: (a) football officials are getting better at their jobs; (b) coachy manners are improving; (c) coaches have grown so dependent upon their post-game study of the films that they have abandoned the pretense that they can see what goes on while it is happening.

The Observer

The first hypothesis is improbable and the second wildly implausible but the third may have some validity. For example when Iowa scored late to defeat Wisconsin recently, pressbox witnesses thought they saw an Iowa player offside but the Wisconsin coach, Milt Bruhn, held his peace pending a review of the movies. If he uttered even a whimper after seeing the pictures, it escaped attention here.

It wasn't always thus. Away back on New Year's Day, 1937, Villanova played Auburn in the first and only Bacardi Bowl game in Havana, feature of a sports festival sponsored by the government of President Gomez. The teams had already left home when Batista tossed Gomez out of office, cooling Cuban interest in a deposed government's promotion.

Harvey Harman, then coach at Pennsylvania, happened to be in Havana and was pressed into service as field judge to avoid the expense of importing another official. In those days Franklin Field was doing the biggest annual business in Eastern football. The Penn coach wasn't above letting officials know that it was an honor and privilege to work a Penn game.

Other Guy's Game

The late, great referee, Wilmers Crowell, rejoiced wickedly on the eve of the game when a slightly sheepish Harman asked whether he happened to have a rulebook handy. Bill fought back the temptation to say: "Why, Harvey, I thought you were America's leading authority on the rules."

In the taxi taking officials to the field, Harvey said nervously: "I'm depending on you fellows to help me out."

"Right!" Crowell said, "but let me tell you one thing. The way you're feeling now, that's how we feel in the dressing room at Franklin Field, just praying we won't pull any rocks out there in front of 70,000. Then the Penn coach comes in and says, 'My scouts tell me this other team has been beating the start,' or something, and we say, 'Yes, coach, we'll watch it, coach,' when what we want to say is, 'Will you please get the hell out of here and let us do our job?'"

Crowell enjoyed himself on the field, especially with a rough Auburn guard who'd obviously been around more than somewhat, and who kept up a running commentary on the myopia, incompetence and probable bias of the referee. After a good deal of that, Bill addressed the young man, nose to nose: "Listen, fella, I'll give you a choice. One more crack out of you, and I'll either slap you 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct -- or buy you a drink after the game."

"Gee, mister, the player said, "I won't drink with you. You're too tough."

Philadelphia Story

Harman had only one troublesome moment, when Auburn claimed foul on a fair catch. He rejected the complaint then, but sought Crowell's opinion after the game.

"You called it right," Bill said, "but if that had been your Penn quarterback, Lew Elverson, who got bumped on that catch, you'd have been off the bench screaming murder at the field judge."

There was a thoughtful silence. Both men lived in Philadelphia. The first one back would have some stories to tell aroundtown.

"This is a great place," Harvey said. "Uh, uh, you're not going to rush right home, are you?"

THE SHOOTING STARTS

The boys with the scatterguns really get down to business this Saturday when the small game season opens in Pennsylvania and lasts until December 3. (Except turkeys which close November 26.) All the special seasons are as nothing compared with the blasting that is about to cut loose in our hills and valleys, and the game which has been enjoying a comparatively peaceful existence suddenly will find that this can be a cruel world with mighty few friends, especially of the two-legged variety.

The hot irons should find some ringnecks, turkeys, and quail to shoot at, if stocking means anything. The Game Commission released 100,200 birds in late summer and early fall, and earlier in the year released 78,442.

Most of these were ringnecks, 156,000, of which about 100,000 were cocks. Very few of the quails came our way, most of them going to southern counties.

The turkey shooting should be good. There already was a good supply left in the woods and another 3,000 were distributed this year.

*** THE SUPPLY

The Game Commission says it believes the game supply is a bit lighter than last season, but that the 1959 conditions were very good. So, the hunting this year also should be better than average.

In our area the Commission says the rabbits are ten per cent less than last year, but in the southern part of the state they are up ten to twenty per cent. Pheasants are up ten per cent. Grouse have increased as much as twenty-five per cent in some areas. Turkey population is good, but you must walk a little, sweat a little, and do more than stroll into the woods a few feet from your car.

The squirrels are out there talking to you where there is food to keep them. We believe they are reasonably prolific in this area, and in fact even are seen frequently running across the highway.

Coon? Too many and easy to find.

*** IT'S LOADED

Every gun is loaded. Every

GLADSTONE, MICH. -- Claude Rogers of Virginia Beach, Va., holds his catch of Northern Pike that won the sixth round of the World Series of Sport Fishing held on Little Bay de Noc.

Admiring Roger's catch is Harold Ensley of Kansas City, Mo., who was proclaimed champion after the final round Monday.

Marcel Tourdot, Pennsylvania champion, finished third.

gun is "off safe". Remember those two warnings and you will stand a very good chance of coming back to your family with all of your limbs and your life.

A million gunmen will be in the woods and fields of Pennsylvania within the next few weeks. Considering the number the sport can be qualified as a safe one. Last year 513 people were injured, 18 of them with arrows.

Seventeen people were killed. That may not be a high percentage, but it means that seventeen who started out for a good time a year ago are not here for the same pleasure this season.

Of those injured or killed, 109 were shot by their own weapons. Which takes us back to our suggestion that no gun even should be pointed at anything you do not intend to shoot, even if it "isn't loaded" or is "on safe".

Most of the 513 accidents were due to carelessness including the two types we have mentioned. Obviously the vast majority were not due to these, but were caused by other hunters.

Here again it is carelessness that is to blame. We cannot understand why anyone shoots at a target if they cannot plainly see the animal. Obviously they cannot in too many cases.

Is it worth a human life to be sure you "get" something that is moving in the bushes or grass? Is a bit of meat or a trophy that important to you? Don't point any weapon if you do not intend to shoot, and don't shoot unless you can clearly see what your target is.

UNION LAKE, MICH. -- Marcel Tourdot, the coalminer from Vestaburg who won the Pennsylvania State Fishing Championship in the contest at Tidioute October 1-2, placed third in a field of 60 contestants from 20 states and six foreign countries in the World Series of Sports Fishing which closed here Monday.

Tourdot, a live bait artist, stayed with the leaders with his consistent fishing after winning the trophy on the first round.

Winner of the World Series was Harold Ensley, radio and tv outdoor sportscaster from Kansas City, Mo. In a close second position was Don Staser, a mail clerk from Lansing, Mich.

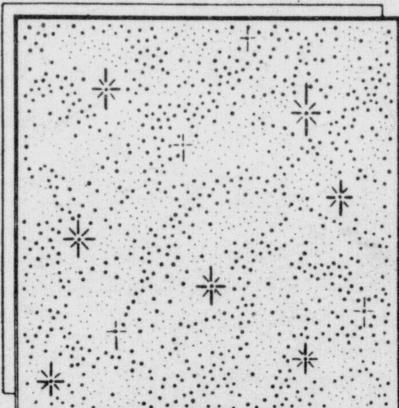

The World Series lasted eight days. The first day's fishing was done at Union Lake in lower Michigan. The tour then moved northward over six other lakes before returning to Union Lake for the final round.

The contestants were plagued with high winds, freezing temperatures, rain and snow flurries throughout the tournament, and the catches each day were disappointing.
